A split-ring resonator (SRR) is an artificially produced structure common to metamaterials. Their purpose is to produce the desired magnetic susceptibility (magnetic response) in various types of metamaterials up to 200 terahertz.

Depending on the frequency, waveguides can be constructed from either conductive or dielectric materials. Generally, the lower the frequency to be passed the larger the waveguide is.

II. DESIGN OF THE CAVITY RESONATOR SIW AND QUALITY FACTOR. The propagation properties in the SIW and in the conventional metallic rectangular waveguide are very similar.

Increasing attention on metamaterials has been paid due to their exciting physical behaviors and potential applications. While most of such artificial material structures developed so far are based on metallic resonant structures, Mie resonances of dielectric particles open a simpler and more versatile route for construction of isotropic ...

Radio Electronics Pages. General information. The laws regarding the use of the radiospectrum are actually fairly uniform, and established by international treaty, for the obvious reason that radio signals do not respect international borders.

Professor Phil Callahan has suggested that paramagnetism represents "Light from Rocks to the Roots". His PCSM has effectively lifted an abstract concept into the realms of hard science.
